

I understand that Sinclair Broadcasting is requiring its member stations to air a distinctly anti-Kerry program in the weeks before the Presidential election. I am very much opposed to their being allowed to do this. The airways are public domain and, as such, should not be used to present bias or political positions as though they were news programs. It is my belief that, if a station broadcasts a political message biased to one side, that station is supposed to give equal time to the other side. Whatever happened to that rule? The FCC has the obligation to uphold the rules governing the use of the public airwaves. Please stop Sinclair Broadcasting. This is yet another example of the harm and misuse to which the PUBLIC airwaves may be subjected when too many stations are controlled by one organization. I expect the FCC to uphold the rules meant to keep the public airwaves as a means of information, communication and dissemination of diverse thought and philosophies.
